

NOTES ON AUTHOR

NAZIM ACAR was born in Halfeti, Turkey, of Kurdish parents, in 1973 and grew up with a gun in hand on the battleground between the Kurdish Workers Party and the Turkish Armed Forces. Nazim currently works as a mathematician and sailor at Lester B. Pearson College where understanding each other and building peace takes place. He has lived and taught in Turkey, Ethiopia, Bosnia, Jordan, and Canada, and enjoys conversations and serving crepes with coffee. Nazim also watches the Middle East, curious how much pain it will take for it to give birth to a sibling in kind for the European Union. E-mail: nacar@pearsoncollege.ca.

JOBB ARNOLD is an Assistant Professor of Conflict Resolution Studies at Menno Simons College, a college of the Canadian Mennonite University also affiliated with the University of Winnipeg. His research examines the cultural dynamics of conflict and he is currently working on a project exploring discursive forms of peacebuilding in cyberspace and on the land base. E-Mail: jo.arnold@uwinnipeg.ca.

BEKALU ATNAFU TAYE is an assistant professor of English Education at Kotebe Metropolitan University (KMU) in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia. He is a director for Centers of Excellence in Research at KMU. He has taught in various public and private higher learning institutions. He has produced teaching materials and published research articles in the area of conflict, education and psychology in various reputable journals. E-Mail: bekaluatnafu@yahoo.com.

PATLEE CREARY is a retired military officer (Jamaica Defence Force). She holds a Ph.D. in Peace and Conflict Studies and a M.A. in Political Studies from the University of Manitoba. She currently teaches political studies at the International College of Manitoba in Winnipeg, Manitoba. E-Mail: umcreary@myumanitoba.ca.

PEACE RESEARCH
The Canadian Journal of Peace and Conflict Studies
Volume 50, Number 1 (2018): 115-117
©2018 Peace Research

SURULOLA EKE is a PhD student at the Arthur V. Mauro Centre for Peace and Justice, University of Manitoba, Canada. His research interests include ethnic conflict analysis and resolution, international security, and international political economy. Currently, he is researching the causes of the conflict between nomadic pastoralists and sedentary farmers in Nigeria's Middle-belt region. His work has appeared in African Studies, African Security, African Security Review, Journal of Asian and African Studies, The Round Table, Defence and Security Analysis, Journal for Peace and Justice Studies, etc. E-Mail: ekes@myumanitoba.ca.

ELSPETH GUILD is a Jean Monnet Professor ad personam in law at Queen Mary University of London and Radboud University, Nijmegen, Netherlands. She is also a partner at the London law firm, Kingsley Napley. She regularly advises European Union institutions on migration and asylum related matters and has written studies for the European Parliament on the European dimension of the refugee crisis in 2016. She also advises the Council of Europe and has written two Issue Papers for the Commissioner for Human Rights, one on the right to leave a country the other on criminalization of migration. In 2009, she wrote her monograph Security and Migration in the 21st Century Polity, Cambridge, 2009. In 2017, she co-edited with Stefanie Grant and Kees Groenendijk, The Human Rights of Migrants in the 21st Century published with Routledge in the Focus series directed at the United Nations Global Compact for Safe, Orderly and Regular Migration. E-Mail: e.guild@qmul.ac.uk.

KAREN RIDD has taught at Menno Simons College since 1997 in both the International Development and Conflict Resolution Studies programmes. Karen's human rights work with Peace Brigades International in Central America created in her a lifetime passion for nonviolent social change, and for bringing to light historic examples of Canadian activism. E-Mail: k.ridd@uwinnipeg.ca.

ERICH SCHELLHAMMER recently retired from Royal Roads University, Victoria, Canada after a long career in justice studies. His research interest developed from finding a philosophical justification for the merits of cultural diversity to a phenomenological grounding of human rights in human ontology to embracing recent leadership studies to identify a new leadership category, which is peace leadership. His latest academic interest is in combining modern leadership studies with peace and conflict studies in order to formulate a framework for peace leadership. He has been the inaugural chair of the Peace Leadership Affinity Group of the International Leadership Association and has published numerous articles on peace leadership. Erich lives in Canada and in Germany. E-Mail: Erich.Schellhammer@RoyalRoads.ca.