

NOTES ON AUTHOR

---

JANE BOULDEN is a Professor at the Royal Military College of Canada and Research Fellow at the Queen's University Centre for International and Defence Policy. From 2000 until 2004 she was a MacArthur Research Fellow at the Centre for International Studies, University of Oxford. From 2004-2014 she held a Canada Research Chair in International Relations and Security Studies. E-Mail: Jane.Boulden@rmc.ca.

JOBB ARNOLD is an Assistant Professor of Conflict Resolution Studies at Menno Simons College, a college of the Canadian Mennonite University also affiliated with the University of Winnipeg. His research examines the cultural dynamics of conflict and he is currently working on a project exploring discursive forms of peacebuilding in cyberspace and on the land base. E-Mail: jo.arnold@uwinnipeg.ca.

TIMOTHY DONAIS is an Associate Professor in the Department of Global Studies at Wilfrid Laurier University in Waterloo, Ontario, where he teaches in the field of peace and conflict studies. His research focuses on peacebuilding, security sector reform, and UN peace support operations. E-Mail: tdonais@wlu.ca.

PATLEE CREARY is a retired military officer (Jamaica Defence Force). She holds a Ph.D. in Peace and Conflict Studies and a M.A. in Political Studies from the University of Manitoba. She currently teaches political studies at the International College of Manitoba in Winnipeg, Manitoba. E-Mail: umcreary@myumanitoba.ca.

NEIL FUNK-UNRAU is an Associate Professor of Conflict Resolution Studies and the Associate Dean of Menno Simons College. He is also the senior co-editor of Peace Research: The Canadian Journal of Peace and Conflict Studies. He teaches courses in conflict resolution and restorative justice, and has also published articles and book chapters on the history of Canadian indigenous relations and on public apologies. E-Mail: n.funk-unrau@uwinnipeg.ca.

MATHIEU LANDRIault obtained his PhD from the University of Ottawa in 2013 and currently teaches at the School of Political Studies at the University of Ottawa, and at the School of Conflict Studies at Saint Paul University. He is also an associate researcher at the Centre for Interuniversity Research on the International Relations of Canada and Quebec (CIRRICQ), researching media and public opinion on Arctic security, sovereignty, and governance matters, as well as Canadian foreign policy. His current academic interest centres on studying Canadian public opinion on peace operations and the challenges and opportunities for Canada of a new regional governance regime in the Central Arctic Ocean. E-Mail: mathieulandriault77@hotmail.com.

PATRICK J. O'HALLORAN retired as Lieutenant-Colonel after thirty-seven years in the Canadian Armed Forces. He is an Adjunct Assistant Professor at the Royal Military College of Canada and holds a PhD in Political Science from York University. He has taught undergraduate and graduate courses in international security and defence policy, public policy, and comparative politics, as well as publishing articles and presenting on conflict studies and terrorism. E-Mail: ohalloran.patrick.j@gmail.com.

DEAN PEACHEY is a Professor of Human Rights at the University of Winnipeg. His teaching examines transitional justice and peacebuilding in a variety of settings. His current research explores the meaning of reconciliation in Canada between Indigenous and other Canadians. He is a proponent of experience-based education, and has led students on field courses in Manitoba, South Africa, Israel, and Palestine. E-Mail: d.peachey@uwinnipeg.ca.

KAREN RIDD has taught at Menno Simons College since 1997 in both the International Development and Conflict Resolution Studies programmes. Karen's human rights work with Peace Brigades International in Central America created in her a lifetime passion for nonviolent social change, and for bringing to light historic examples of Canadian activism. E-Mail: k.ridd@uwinnipeg.ca.

ERICH SCHELLHAMMER recently retired from Royal Roads University, Victoria, Canada after a long career in justice studies. His research interest developed from finding a philosophical justification for the merits of cultural diversity to a phenomenological grounding of human rights in human ontology to embracing recent leadership studies to identify a new leadership category, which is peace leadership. His latest academic interest is in combining modern leadership studies with peace and conflict studies in order to formulate a framework for peace leadership. He has been the inaugural chair of the Peace Leadership Affinity Group of the International Leadership Association and has published numerous articles on peace leadership. Erich lives in Canada and in Germany. E-Mail: Erich.Schellhammer@RoyalRoads.ca.