

NOTES ON AUTHORS

LAURA MENDEZ CARVAJAL is Assistant Professor at the University of South Florida, where she teaches international political economy with a regional focus on Latin America. Her research examines the political economy of development, specifically investigating how the rhetoric of development influences systems of beliefs and behaviours in recipient communities. Additionally, she has been recognized as a United States Institute for Peace (USIP) Peace Fellow, highlighting her contributions to peace and development studies. Email: lmendezcarvajal@usf.edu.

GAMZE OVACIK is a McGill Third Century (M3C) Postdoctoral Fellow at the McGill University Faculty of Law, where she has also been an O'Brien Human Rights Fellow in Residence and a Steinberg Postdoctoral Fellow. Previously, she was an assistant professor at Başkent Law School and a postdoctoral fellow at the University of Gothenburg. She holds a PhD from Bilkent Law School and an LLM from Amsterdam Law School. Her research intersects with migration and asylum law, international law, and human rights law. Email: gamze.ovacik@mcgill.ca.

SORPONG PEOU is Full Professor in the Department of Politics and Public Administration at Toronto Metropolitan University and a member of the Yeates School of Graduate Studies. He holds a PhD and MA from York University and a BA (Honours) from the University of Waterloo. His research and teaching focus on global peace and security, global governance, and comparative politics, with an emphasis on the Indo-Pacific region.

PEACE RESEARCH

The Canadian Journal of Peace and Conflict Studies

Volume 56, Number 1 (2024): 188-190

©2025 Peace Research

He holds numerous affiliations, including with the Asian Political and International Studies Association (APISA), McLaughlin College, Research Center for Asian Studies (RCAS) Hong Kong, and the Canadian Association for Refugee and Forced Migration Studies (CARFMS), and has previously served as president of Science for Peace and as department chair at multiple universities. Internationally recognized, he has also held academic positions in Japan and Singapore. He currently serves as Executive Editor of The Asian Journal of Peacebuilding and sits on several editorial and advisory boards for journals and book series in the fields of peace, conflict, and international relations. He was a survivor of the Khmer Rouge killing fields. Email: speou@torontomu.ca.

ERICH SCHELLHAMMER retired from Royal Roads University in Victoria, Canada, after a long career in justice studies. His research interests have ranged from finding philosophical justification for the merits of cultural diversity, to a phenomenological grounding of human rights in human ontology, to embracing recent leadership studies, to identifying a new leadership category, that of peace leadership. His latest academic interest is in combining modern leadership studies with peace and conflict studies to formulate a framework for peace leadership. He was the inaugural chair of the Peace Leadership Affinity Group of the International Leadership Association and has published numerous articles on peace leadership. Erich lives in Canada and in Germany. Email: Erich.Schellhammer@RoyalRoads.ca.

MAUREEN SILCOFF has practised refugee and immigration law since 1988. She is a partner at Silcoff Shacter, where she litigates complex cases. She was previously a decision-maker at the Immigration and Refugee Board and has served as the president of the Canadian Association of Refugee Lawyers (CARL). Maureen is a frequent speaker on immigration and refugee issues at conferences and in the media, and is an instructor at the Lincoln Alexander School of Law at Toronto Metropolitan University. Email: msilcoff@silcoffshacter.com.

JAMES C. SIMEON is Professor in the School of Public Policy and Administration, Faculty of Liberal Arts and Professional Studies, York University. He is the Vice-President, and a past president, of the Canadian Association for Refugees and Forced Migration Studies (CARFMS), and serves as Coordinator of the International Association for Refugee and Migration Judges' (IARMJ) Inter-Conference Working Party Process. His areas of research include international refugee law, human rights law, humanitarian law, criminal law, and public policy and administration. He publishes in these areas and organizes and leads academic and professional conferences, symposia, and workshops. Prior to joining the faculty at York University, James served on the Immigration and Refugee Board (IRB) of Canada and as executive director of the International Association of Refugee Law Judges (IARLJ), the predecessor of the IARMJ. Email: jcsimeon@yorku.ca.

STEPHANIE PHETSAMAY STOBBE is a professor of Business and Conflict Resolution Studies at Canadian Mennonite University, and an expert in Southeast Asian conflict resolution. She has led peacebuilding efforts worldwide, advised organizations including the UNDP, and serves as President of the Canadian Association for Refugees and Forced Migration Studies (CARFMS). A published author and editor, she also created and curated the Hearts of Freedom – Stories of Southeast Asian Refugees museum exhibition that has travelled across Canada. Her current co-authored book, by the same title, was published by McGill-Queen's University Press. In recognition of her service and extraordinary contribution to Canada, she was awarded the King Charles III Coronation Medal presented at the Senate of Canada. Email: sstobbe@cmu.ca.